

SLEUTHS WHOM WOMAN ACCUSES PUT UNDER FIRE

Deputy Commissioner Woods Questions McConville and Nelson at Headquarters.

SCANDAL BEHIND IT ALL.

Mrs. Cameron Says Detectives Made Threat to Stop Her Suit Against Lawyer.

Deputy Police Commissioner Woods today questioned Lieut. McConville and Nelson on the charge of persecution preferred by Mrs. Edna C. Cameron, of the Hotel Rialto, in West Forty-fourth street. In her suit to recover $100 she alleges she loaned Attorney William B. McConville, of No. 133 Broadway, she alleges that the detectives attempted to silence her under threat of arrest as a blackmailer.

Her sworn statement recites her meeting with Douglas Buchanan, half brother of Mrs. R. G. Dun, Mrs. Cameron says that she became Buchanan's "mistress" and lived with him under various names at various noted hotels until he tired of her. She circumstantially describes an alleged introduction Buchanan gave her to Mrs. Dun and of his promise to marry her when a decent period had elapsed after his wife's death.

In October, she says, he was giving her a dinner in the Manhattan Hotel restaurant when McConville appeared and was introduced. She says McConville also became devoted to her in his attentions to her, and then began to poison her mind against Buchanan. McConville up to a few years ago lived at Caldwell, N. J., with his wife and four children. He now resides in Essex Falls, one station away. He is middle-aged, wears sandy whiskers and is inclined to bald.

Mrs. Cameron says she had nothing save what Buchanan had been giving her to live on, her own fortune having been swept away by bad investments. Finally McConville, she says, told her he represented Buchanan, who wished to make a financial settlement to her and secure his release from her. She agreed. Then he continued:

"About this time Mr. McConville told me that he loved me, and induced me to take up my home in various hotels. Where he paid my expenses. At first he was liberal, letting me understand that he was wealthy. Finally he came to me and told me that he had $2,400 for me, all the money he said, which was coming to me after he had deducted his own fee of $1,000. I asked him if it was customary for lawyers to exact a fee from both sides, and he said it was. He declared that all the money he got from Buchanan was $5,000.

"I was ignorant, needed money, and accepted the sum. I later learned that Mrs. Dun gave $15,000 to settle the matter. It being presented to her that I would otherwise bring about a scandal, Mr. McConville supported me until January when he began borrowing from me until the sum amounted to $1,100. I had pawned my jewels to raise part of it."

"Stripped Me of Every Dollar."

"Immediately that he had stripped me of every dollar, leaving me not enough to pay my board bill, McConville left me. I called him up on the phone and requested him to pay back the $1,100 he had borrowed. He refused, and I could not spare it. I asked him to pay it back to me in the sums he had borrowed it. He refused and told me that if I gave him any trouble he would put me in jail. He had powerful friends in the Detective Bureau, and I was stopped in and took rooms in the Alhambra, No. 41 Fourth street, and he called up McConville in his office and asked him over the telephone to settle with me. He replied that he would send me to the island."

"This was on July 7, or 8, and the next day there came a ring at the door of my apartment. Now, under the rules of the hotel no visitor may ring the bell, but must first be announced over the phone or by a page. I supposed that a page or bell boy had rung, and opened the door. It was an Irishman at the time, and he was lying down."

"The instant I unlatched the door two men pushed it open violently and came into my apartment saying: 'We are Central Office detectives. We have a warrant for your arrest.'"

Accused of Blackmail.

"Then the spokesman said: 'You are trying to blackmail Mr. McConville. You have got to stop it or you will go to jail.' I broke down and wept. I said that such an arrest would disgrace Mr. Buchanan. Mr. McConville was present, and told them the whole story. Then the detective who did the talking said: 'We haven't really got to arrest you. You must let me see you. You must promise to let me see you alone. A woman of your kind can't go after New York lawyers. William B. McConville was violent in his denunciation of Mrs. Cameron, and again and again said: 'I am a blackmailer.'"

"I paid over to her $5,000 and got a release. That was all I paid every cent of it over to her. She said: 'Did you call Mrs. Cameron on the phone and get Mrs. McConville to talk with her?'"

"That is a lie," stormed Mr. McConville. "The woman called up my wife and told her that I had been supporting her. She told me a lot of lies. I laid the matter before the District Attorney and Police Headquarters. The District Attorney wanted to prosecute the woman."

Widow Who Accuses Detectives, And Lawyer Whom She Is Suing

SUSPECT IN THE HUGHES ASSAULT CASE CAPTURED

Police Arrest a Bartender as Man Who Attacked and Robbed Woman.

Louis P. Sarrocco, a bartender, of No. 1168 Forest avenue, the Bronx, was arrested on suspicion to-day by Detectives Herbert, Tierney and Farrell, who believe he was implicated in the gagging, blinding, beating and robbing of Mrs. Estelle Hughes, of No. 49 East One Hundred and Sixty-second street, who was attacked in her home by a robber on Wednesday night.

Just what evidence the detectives have against Sarrocco they would not say, but from the first they have suspected an Italian.

They got an excellent description of the man who killed the young wife from her home from her and from Thomas Hughes, her husband's brother. Sarrocco was arrested at his home after midnight.

The police believe two men were implicated in the robbery, and are working to-day to find the second man. Sarrocco denies his guilt and declares that he can show he was on duty at a saloon when the assault occurred.

In the Morrisania Police Court the detectives admitted they had found no actual proof against Sarrocco, who is said to be a hard-working Irish man, but at their request Magistrate Steinert held the Italian in bonds of $1,500 on the charge of being a suspicious person until to-morrow in order to give the police time to get evidence if possible.

BANKER BENEDICT'S WIFE NEAR DEATH

Has Been an Invalid Since Her Son Was Killed in Auto Smash, Seven Years Ago.

(Special to The Evening World.)

GREENWICH, Conn., Sept. 20.—Mrs. E. C. Benedict, wife of Commodore Benedict, the New York banker, is dying at her Indian Harbor residence in Greenwich, Conn. The family physician says she may live the day out, but her recovery is impossible.

Last night the entire family was summoned to her bedside, as it was thought the end was near.

Mrs. Benedict was prostrated by the violent death of her son Fred in an automobile accident seven years ago and since then has been an invalid.

SPURNED SUITOR WRITES THREATS ON POSTAL CARD

Demands $100 From Widow Who Refused Him and Gets Arrested.

Detective Russo of the District-Attorney's staff, to-day went up to No. 137 West One Hundred and Third street on a request of Mrs. Timonczio Garofoli, a widow living at that address.

She had telephoned that a threatening letter had been sent her by Enrico Bianchi, a chemist of some little repute who has a laboratory at No. 43 Park avenue, but lives with Dr. Frank Bianchi, at No. 400 East One Hundred and Sixth street.

The detective found Bianchi parading in front of the house, shouting threats up at the window and shaking his fist. When Russo arrested and searched him, he found a big knife in one pocket.

In Centre street, where Bianchi was arrested, Mrs. Garofoli told this story: For a year Bianchi has persecuted her with his attentions and professions of marriage. After making violent love she says, he threatened to kill her if she didn't give him $100. She said that during the course of his love-making he had presented her with small sums from time to time, and that on receiving a flat refusal to marry him he had called for the $100 as restitution. She refused.

To-day she received a postal from Bianchi, reading:

"Your actions nauseate. Do you or do you not intend to pay or do you want to suicide? Did I not give you the money? Why do you pretend to keep what is not yours? Look out that you don't torment me too far. I gave you $100 in fifteen days and I don't want to be thought a sucker. The girl will be very soon in my hands. Magistrate House held him in $200 bail to Special Sessions."

PELL CANNOT SEE SON FOR 2 YEARS

Interlocutory Decree Granted, Wife Orders Father Not to Call Upon Child.

Justice Gray, in the Supreme Court, to-day granted an interlocutory divorce to Mrs. Mary Hutton Pell from Alexander Merces Pell. The papers in the case were sealed by order of the court.

Mrs. Pell, prior to her marriage to the defendant, which took place at No. 1014 Lexington avenue on June 2, 1897, was Miss Mary Hutton Eustace. She and Pell have not lived together for some time, Mrs. Pell having spent the last three years in London.

The decree awards to Mrs. Pell the care and custody of their only son, Leslie Hyle Pell, and directs that his father shall not be permitted to see the boy for two years after the entry of the final judgment. After that time and places, which will be fixed by the court.

BROTHERS TO WED THREE IMPORTED ENGLISH GIRLS

Came Over on the Lucania to Join Their Fiances in New Jersey.

A triple romance that began in the fogs of old London will reach the happy wedding bells stage to-morrow evening at Union Hill, N. J., when the three Johnson brothers—count 'em, three—lead their blushing brides to the altar. Six hearts will beat as three William, Herbert and Reuben Johnson, apple-cheeked young Britons who sang "God Save the King" lustily and tired of riding in the blooming tuppenny tube, were in love. On Sundays and bank half holidays they used to stroll out in Chelsea, and the Strand with three fair daughters of Britannia—Miss Amy Mugg, Miss Anna Day and Miss Lillian Burdette.

And first it was William and Amy, then it was Herbert and Anna, and finally it was Reuben and Lillian, all enveloped in a perfectly blissful haze that was thicker than the fog which settles down on Piccadilly Circus. Three solitary flashes whenever the Johnson brothers went out for a walk with the young ladies, and altogether it was just like a Florida sextette when they strolled Palm Mall.

But there was the matter of boys and girls, and ambitious young men were more plentiful than guinea and ponies. They decided to go to America, the land of plenty and start a mine in New York, or dig for gold in Jersey, and all that sort of thing, you know.

So they came over to Union Hill and went into business. They lived at No. 44 Fisher avenue, and after two years here had prospered so that they were ready for the happy event.

They sent the passage money last month, and the three British blondes made great efforts to book on the Lucania, but were too late, for all state-rooms had been taken in advance. So they took the sturdy, speedy old Lucania, and bluff Capt. Barr tried to keep up to the speedy turbine in order to unite the loving hearts the sooner.

There was jollification when the girls arrived last Saturday morning, and the Johnson boys took their fiancées around to see all the wild and woolly American sights—like Schutzen Park and the outskirts of Hoboken. And the girls have been visiting the New York shops ever since. If your headstone troupeaux.

Saturday afternoon at 5.30 the Johnson procession will form and march on the personage of the First Baptist Church, where the Rev. Mr. J. Shindell will pronounce the words which will unite three more Johnsons to the "too-much Johnson" family of America.

THEODORE G. EGER RESIGNS.

Theodore G. Eger, vice-president and general manager of the Clyde line, after forty years' service, has resigned. He will spend the winter in Europe.

If there be man, woman or child who has trouble with digestion, let him or her adopt the following menu and depend upon relief.

A little fruit.
Sauce of Grape-Nuts with cream.
A soft boiled egg.
Slice of hard, crisp toast.
Cup of Postum Food Coffee (be sure to boil it 15 minutes and it's delicious).

Let these articles constitute the breakfast, a luncheon or supper, and nothing more.

In a few days the old world will turn around your way, and life seem worth living. Try it.

GIRLS! ARE YOU ALLOWING 1,000 RIVALS TO LAND?

Remember the Maine! And Be on Hand When Cargo of Women Arrives.

BY EDNA CAIN.

Girls of America! To arms! The news despatches announce that 1,000 "marriageable" girls are aboard the Baltic, which has sailed from Liverpool and is due to arrive at New York next Friday. This is a most unfortunate coincidence, inasmuch as the English invasion will meet the American revolution in defense of their future home and prospective husband.

New York is already sufficiently crowded with marriageable girls, the Baltic's fair, frail cargo will be a superfluity of naughtiness in the matrimonial market. There may be something for amusements on this side, but of course, being an affinity is a fate which goes out and attacks itself to an invulnerable girl against her will. She is supposed to sail across the sea to invade it.

The question is, Will the American girls tamely submit to this invasion or will they take a day off next Friday and go down to the pier and shoot off the invaders?

This suggests an interesting situation. Suppose the women issue a general call to arms and thus announce their determination to insure for themselves the rights guaranteed them by the Constitution, namely, liberty to work for a living and the pursuit of husbands. They might protest against the newcomers as aliens and appeal to the latter law, which was designed to protect infant industries.

Man, with his masculine vanity and perversity, will feel flattered by the notion of a whole ocean liner full of girls coming over to win the hearts of his prospective husbands. He will preen his mustaches and say that this is what American women deserve after going abroad all these years and reflecting on men of their own nation by marrying foreigners.

It is time the tide is turning this way. So there it is: the men will doubtless be the ones to Friday just to take a look, you know.

The real estate men and all the other people who are benefited by acceding to the population will also welcome the newcomers.

The women will stand alone in her resentment, and the sex ought to hand together. Here is a chance for that esprit du corps which is one of women's valuable assets in her struggle for what she wants when she wants it.

In the language of the horoscope, the next week will be a good time to close all outstanding engagements with beaux a good time to grapple your future husband to your heart's hope of steel and dare him to duel his palm with entertainment of any chance at all.

Young ladies, will you let the low-downing son of next Friday set upon a kitchen of these predatory men without making an effort to repel them? Dig up your heartstones and hurl them at the invaders.

In the imitation fireplace of a flat, dig up a paving stone and hurl anyhow. A policeman tries to stop you threaten to tell his sweetheart.

Do not let them land, they land the men. Hurl them back into the sea before they can see what they have come to see and their fiery walked in the shallows off Sandy Hook, will be harmless to allure.

MARRIED MAN ARRESTED ON GIRL'S CHARGE

Sixteen-Year-Old Miss Tells of Heartless Treatment at Hands of Subway Guard.

When Max Broumer, a young subway guard, was arrested before Magistrate Moses in the Harlem Police Court to-day on complaint of Annie Keenan, a frail little girl of sixteen years, a story was revealed that shocked the Magistrate.

Annie lived with her mother and sister at No. 56 West One Hundred and Sixty-sixth street, a happy and healthy-minded little girl up to five months ago. She was employed as a salesgirl in a department store and travelled back and forth from her home by way of the subway. It was then that she met Broumer, who has a wife and two children, at No. 219 East Twenty-ninth street. He found time to take Annie to dances and to the theatre.

The girl feared to return home and was told by Broumer to earn a living for herself. A week ago she went to live in a downtown house. There she was found yesterday by her mother and sister, who obtained a warrant for Broumer's arrest.

Broumer was held in $2,000 bail for further examination.

FATHER FATALLY HURT TRYING TO SAVE DAUGHTER

Ladentown Farmer Crushed Under Wagon, While Girl Escapes Uninjured.

HAVERSTRAW, Sept. 20.—While trying to save his daughter's life to-day Aaron Matthews, a prominent farmer of Ladentown, was fatally injured as a result of a runaway.

Matthews, who supplies the market with vegetables, had left his wagon, in which was seated his fourteen-year-old daughter Jessie, at the foot of the big hill. A horse belonging to the National Express Company became frightened at the top of the hill and began a mad run toward the lower part of the town.

Matthews, who saw the horse and wagon coming, rushed toward his daughter and tried to stop the horse. The horse of the express company was killed instantly while the horse attached to the Matthews wagon escaped injury.

The Matthews family is one of the most prominent of Ladentown, and Matthews is a great favorite in Nyack.

GIRL ABDUCTED BY BOGUS DETECTIVES.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 20.—It was reported to the police early to-day that Miss Helen Frenchy, aged twenty, a waitress, was kidnapped last evening from her room at No. 239 Beaubien street by two men who induced her to go with them by representing themselves as police officers who had orders to take her to Police Headquarters to be interviewed by the officials there.

$236,000 LOSER NOW SAID TO BE MRS. A. P. MASON

She Lives at Larchmont and Servant Admits Has "Lost Something."

In spite of the denials of B. F. Norris, the Brooklyn attorney, who is doing all in his power to conceal the identity of his client, at her request, the woman who is said to have lost $236,000 in cash and the $40,000 in jewels in a tin box on a New Haven train is now reported to be Mrs. A. P. Mason, of Larchmont.

At the Mason home it was said to-day that neither Mr. nor Mrs. Mason was at home. A servant, however, said: "They didn't tell me where they were going."

The servant was questioned regarding Mrs. Mason's reported loss. She said: "I know little about it. Mrs. Mason is said to have lost something."

Mrs. Mason is said to be connected with Isaac Mason, a furniture and carpet dealer at No. 115 Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn.
